Having trained with Reddie & Grose, Simon was invited to join the partnership in 1999. He has over 25 years' experience of advising clients in patent, trade mark and design matters.

His clients, who include a wide range of companies and universities in the physical sciences, are located in the USA, China, India, Japan and the EU but are primarily based in Cambridge and East Anglia.

In his spare time, he has a passion for cycling, horology, hiking and gliding.

Simon handles a wide variety of patent work in fields including engineering, materials, electronics, software, medical devices, telecommunications and cryptography.

Simon advises clients in many sectors on trade mark use and protection. He has experience of trade mark clearance searching and selection, filing programmes to register trade marks around the world and inter partes matters such as co-existence agreements and negotiated settlements.
